ABSTRACT

In the late spring of 1976, the Postsecondary Education Advisory Council conducted a survey of all postsecondary offerings that are not part of any higher education institution's curriculum. The purpose was to identify postsecondary opportunities outside the higher education system to provide efficient and effective postsecondary planning in Idaho. A mail survey was conducted of associations and service clubs, banks, businesses, libraries, museums, galleries, media, medical education, recreation, schools, community schools, social services,state and federal agencies, and unions. Of 2,027 mailed surveys, 907 were returned, with 143 organizations indicating postsecondary offerings. The names and addresses of those organizations are appended to this report. The results indicate that religious institutions offer 33 percent of postsecondary programs, followed by government agencies with 11 percent. A total of 125,278 citizens were served by programs outside the regular curriculum of colleges and universities. The number of programs offered by course, category, and region are shown, along with total programs in each region and course descriptions. (LBH)

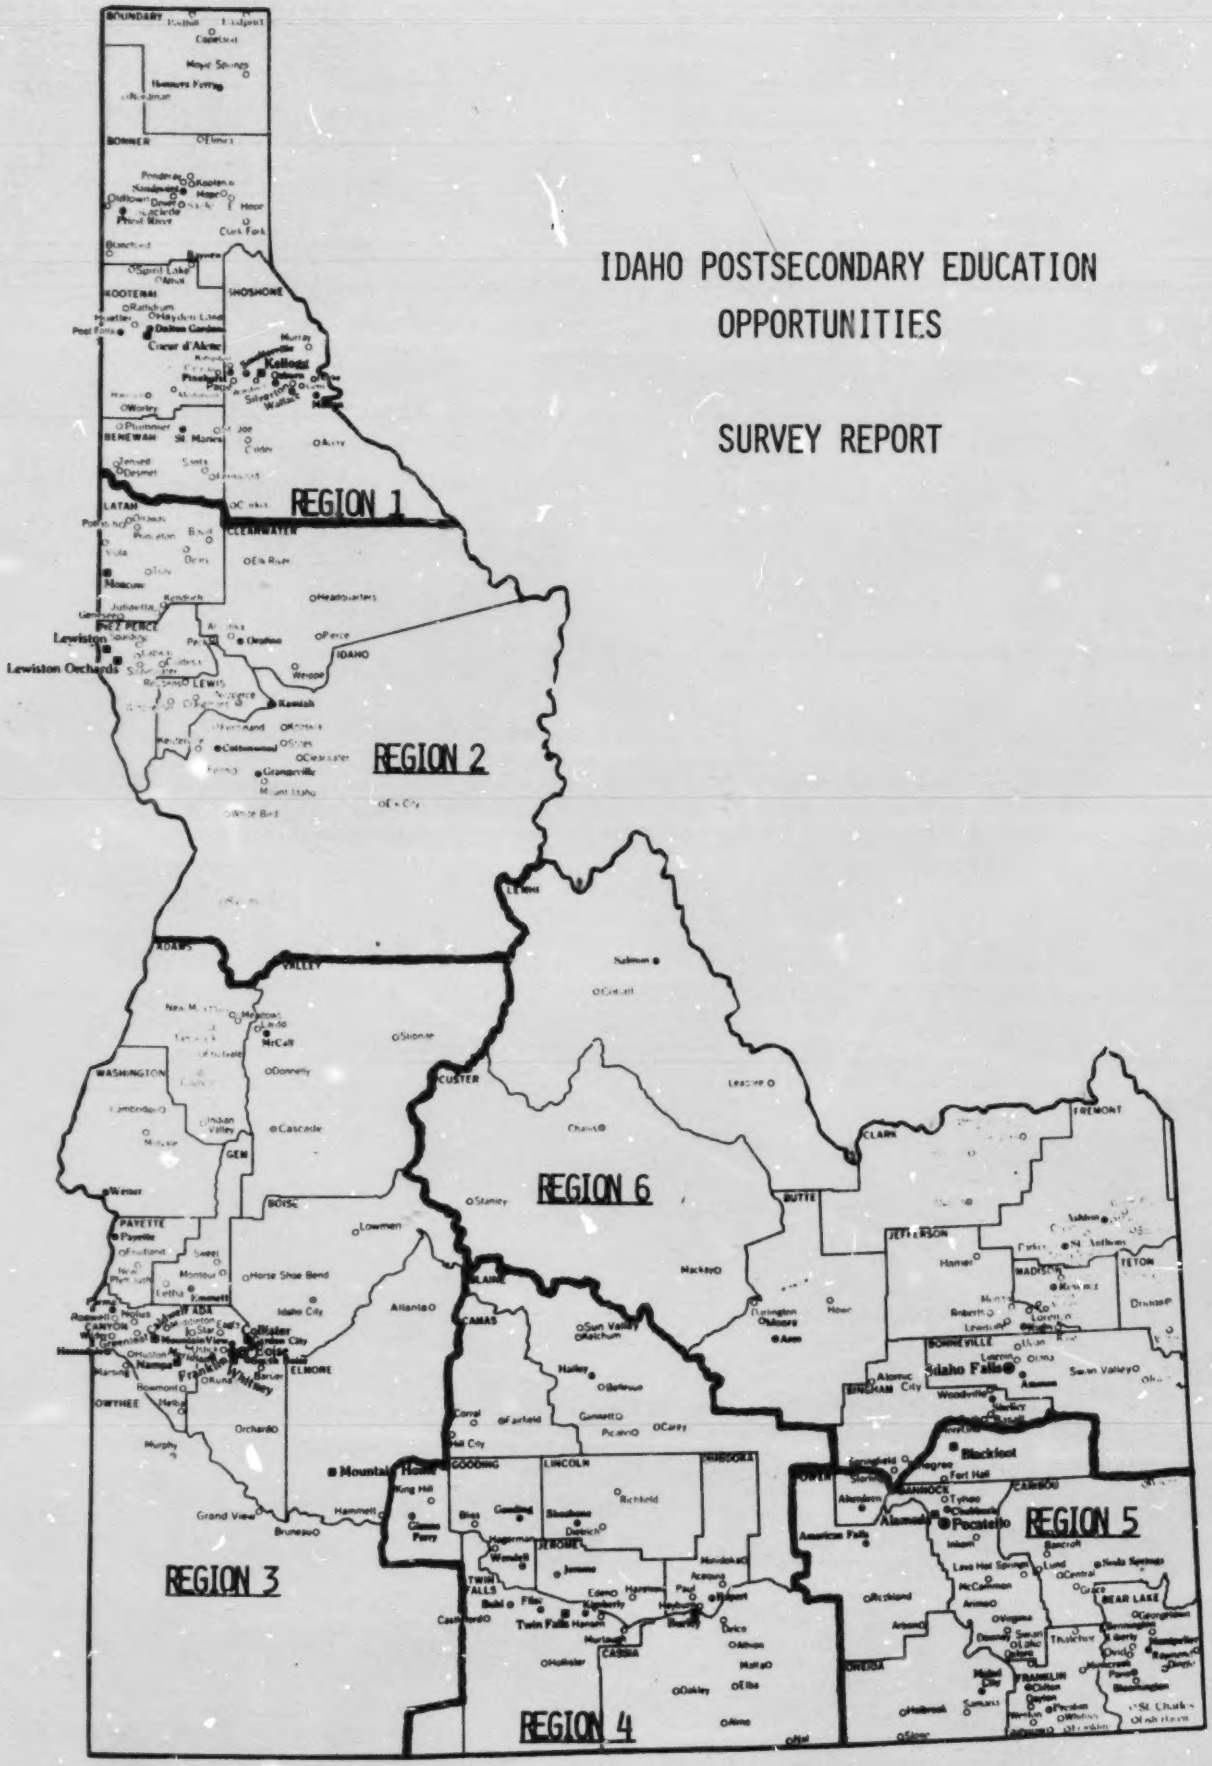
IDAHO POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION OPPORTUNITIES

SURVEY REPORT



PURPOSE

In the late spring of 1976 the Postsecondary Education Advisory Council conducted a survey of all postsecondary offerings which are not part of any higher education institution's curriculum. The purpose of the survey was to identify postsecondary opportunities outside the higher education system in order to enable efficient and effective postsecondary planning in the State of Idaho.

PROCEDURE

In April of 1976, using as a model a survey from Oregon, a cover letter and questionnaire were developed. Twenty-two sample organizations were chosen representing churches, businesses, service organizations, industry and community education and the letter and survey were sent. Seventeen of the sample responded for a seventy-six percent reply. It was determined from this the survey was viable and work began for the general mailing.

A mailing list was assembled containing addresses of organizations in the broad categories of associations and service clubs, churches, banks, businesses, libraries, museums, galleries, media, medical education, recreation, schools, community schools, social services, state and federal agencies and unions.

In May 1976 two thousand and twenty-seven surveys were mailed. Nine hundred and seven were returned. One hundred and forty-three organizations indicated postsecondary offerings. As the returned surveys were received a card was filed in order to assemble a list of cooperating organizations. The names and addresses of the one hundred forty-three organizations (two surveys were returned only with organization indicated) with postsecondary offerings are recorded in Appendix VI of this report.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

-- Religious institutions offer thirty-three percent of postsecondary programs followed by government agencies with eleven percent.

-- One hundred twenty-five thousand two hundred seventy-eight Idahoans were served by programs outside of the regular curriculum of colleges and universities.

-- Forty-five percent of the students were persons with high school education while twenty-five percent were persons with a college education.

-- Thirty-three percent of the students were twenty to thirty years old while eight percent were fifty to sixty years old.

-- Public school districts and religious institutions best served persons from fifty to sixty years old.

-- Religious institutions consistently covered every age group and offered programs in each region.

-- Idaho has two hundred four towns and ninety-six of these have a population of five hundred or less. These small towns only had programs offered by religious institutions and voluntary organizations.

-- In towns with populations of twenty-five hundred to over twenty-five thousand every organization offers programs.

-- Social sciences and humanities, home economics and home arts and natural resources have the most intensive coverage.

-- Region Three has the most programs and the broadest offerings while Region One has the least programs and the least broad coverage.

RESULTS

On the following pages you will find the survey results.

Section I (Appendix I) shows the original survey page and the computer summary of the information.

Section II (Appendix II) shows the number of programs offered by course, category and by region. A total of five thousand two hundred and fifty-one post-secondary courses are offered throughout the state. If need was checked, that is indicated. This information appears in the format of the original survey for clarity. For each program category, the total offerings in each are shown.

Appendix III gives the total programs in each region. It shows how many survey program areas are not offered in each region. Total number of programs in each major category are shown.

Appendix IV lists courses which were written in for survey question twenty-two indicating areas not covered by survey categories.

Appendix V is the cover letter which accompanied the surveys and page one which defines postsecondary education offerings to be surveyed.

SECTION II

QUESTIONNAIRE

Indicate under the GEOGRAPHIC REGION section the number of programs offered in each region which corresponds with the regions on the map (large map front page).

Indicate under the PROGRAM FEE section an amount for fee charged, or if none is charged, use the letter N.

If inadequate or no programming exists in the particular category, but you feel that there is a need, place an X in the NEED section.

EXAMPLE:

PROGRAM	GEOGRAPHIC REGION						AVERAGE PROGRAM FEE	NEED
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Business and Management
Accounting and Bookkeeping			3	5			25
Banking and Finance			1				N	X

The above indicates that for this particular respondent there are three programs in Region 3 and five programs in Region 4 for Accounting and Bookkeeping. The average fee for the program is $25.00. Further, there is one program in Region 3 for Banking and Finance. No fee is charged and column 8 indicates there is need for additional programs in this field.

SUBJECT: Enclosed Questionnaire

The Idaho Postsecondary Education Advisory Council is required to plan for an effective and efficient postsecondary education system for the state. As a first step, the council has decided to inventory all postsecondary offerings in Idaho, ranging from courses in classrooms to special offerings by various organizations.

Please help us by filling out the enclosed questionnaire. We're aware this may be just one more chore for you, but your assistance is essential if we are to turn out a complete survey of postsecondary education opportunities. We've defined our task broadly, but with a high rate of response we should be able to show not only the wide range of offerings, but those "grey areas" where there might be a need which no one is filling.

For your convenience, we've tried to make this survey as painless as possible. If you have any questions, please contact Darlene Foukal (384-2270) at the Office of the State Board of Education.

Thank you for your cooperation -- we hope!

P.S. If you do not conduct any type of postsecondary educational program, please sign the name and address of your organization and return this memo.

Postsecondary Education

Postsecondary Education, for the purpose of this survey, describes courses open to the general public, which are planned educational programs NOT part of a regularly scheduled program at a public or private collegiate institution in Idaho.

Basically, these programs are described in the following categories:

1. Credit Courses

   Academic credit is given by a college or university.

2. Continuing Professional Courses

   These are taken for professional upgrading, licensing or certification. Not included are apprentice programs, in-service training or workshops for professions.

3. Cultural and Personal Interest Courses

   These are courses taken for personal satisfaction and include offerings in arts and crafts and community problems.
